

“Taharuki” Does Los Angeles!

Miriam Chemmoss as “Waridi” in Taharuki (Suspense).
Photo by Milton Kam

Compañeros!

After a fabulous preview screening in New York with rave reviews, we’re moving on to Los Angeles!

Join us at “Out of Africa: A Night to Celebrate Short Films by Kenyan Filmmakers” on Saturday March 5th at Universal Studios for a star-studded night filled with film, art, cuisine and culture!

Tickets will NOT be available at the door so get them online (before 2pm March 4th) by following the link in the pink box above.

We’d love to keep the momentum going so come out and support, and bring your friends and family! For the full line up, check out the website at: <http://wif.org/programs/wifi-shorts-program-2011>

Looking forward to seeing you at the movies!

Ekwa

Where:
100 Universal City Plaza (at Lankershim) Universal City, LA 91608
Stage 27 through Gate 3

When:
Sat. March 5, 2011
6pm—10pm

Queries:
info@ekwapics.com

Additional Details:

Tickets will NOT be available at the door!

Tickets are available online at: <http://wif.org/wifi-order-form> until 2pm PST March 4th.

- $20 for WIF members
- $30 non-WIF members
- Complimentary Parking

Please allow at least 20 mins to get through parking.

A man and woman from opposing ethnic tribes and both working for an underground liberation movement are forced to make tough choices in order to stay alive. Time is running out, lives are at stake, and every second counts. What they choose could change the course of history...

A short film set against the backdrop of the start of the post-election violence that took place in Kenya in 2008, and is a prequel to Sweet Justice, my feature film scheduled to shoot in Nairobi, Kenya (2011.)

Check out the film website @ taharukithemovie.com

Already swamped with email and would prefer just to catch up in person? Please click here

I'm SO feeling that and want to tell you all about it! Email me at: info@ekwapics.com